Notice that the account has not been activated yet

The screenshot shows a Windows Internet Explorer browser window displaying the 'Account activation' page for the Cyprus Tennis Federation. The browser's address bar shows the URL: <http://ctf.tournamentssoftware.com/member/verifyaccount.aspx>. The page features a green navigation bar with links for 'Home', 'Products', and 'About', and a search bar with fields for 'Find tournaments', 'Find players', 'Find teams', and 'Find clubs'. The main content area is titled 'Account activation' and contains the following text:

This account was created on 03 February 2012 but it has not been activated yet. If you have not yet received an activation code in your e-mail, your activation e-mail can be resend or you can change your registered e-mail address. Both actions will generate a new activation code. You can also enter your activation code manually if the link provided in the activation e-mail does not work.

Please check if the activation e-mail was caught in your e-mail spam filter.

You can return to this page at a later time by logging in with your inactive account. Inactive accounts are generally deleted after 48 hours.

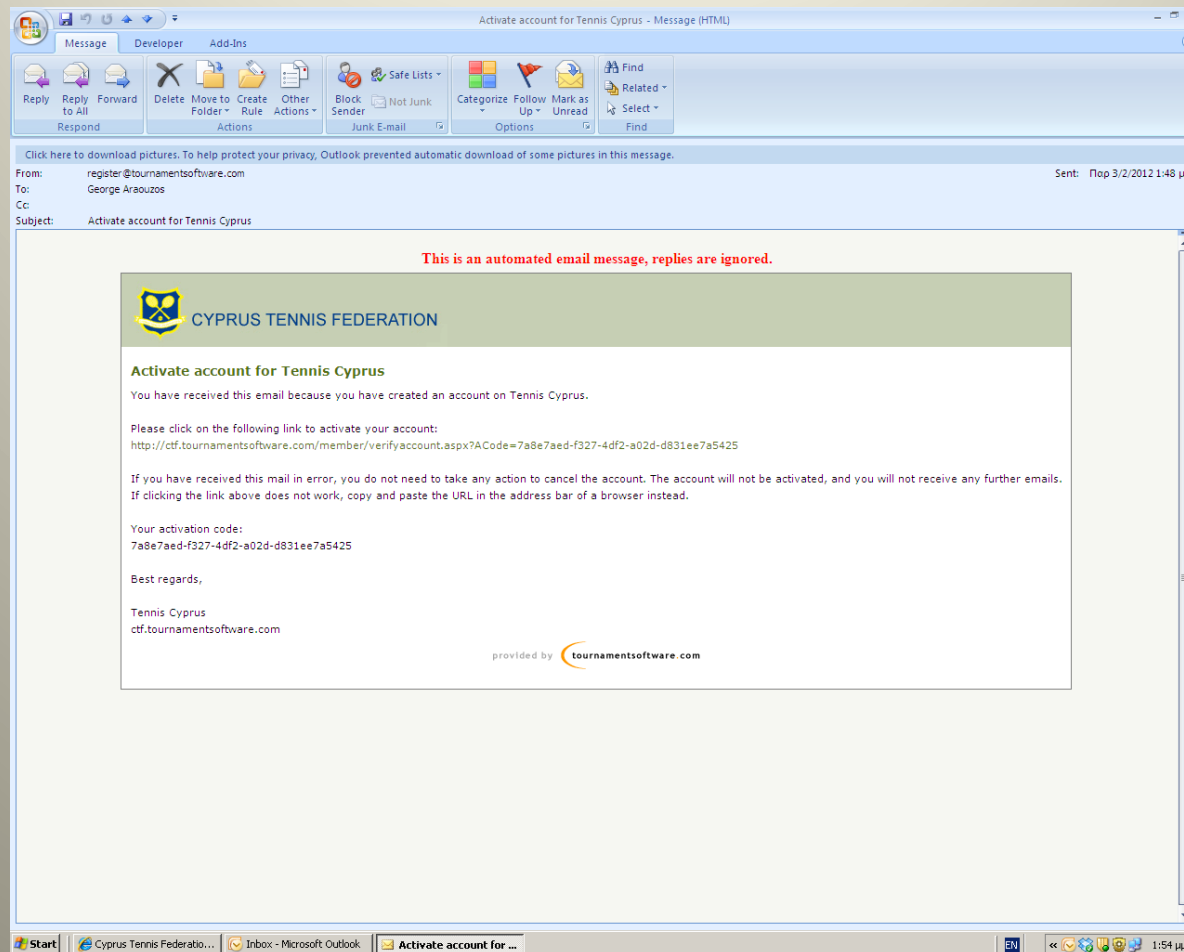

The page offers three options for account activation:

- Change e-mail address: Enter a new e-mail address where the activation code should be sent to. This e-mail address will also be used as the new contact e-mail address for your account. This action will resend an activation e-mail. A text input field and a 'Save' button are provided.
- Resend activation code: Resend activation code to the current e-mail address (info@cyprustennis.com). A 'Resend email' button is provided.
- Manual activation: If you received the activation e-mail but are unable to click the provided link, you can enter the activation code below and activate your account manually. This code should be copied exactly as provided in the e-mail, including dashes (-). A text input field and an 'Activate account' button are provided.

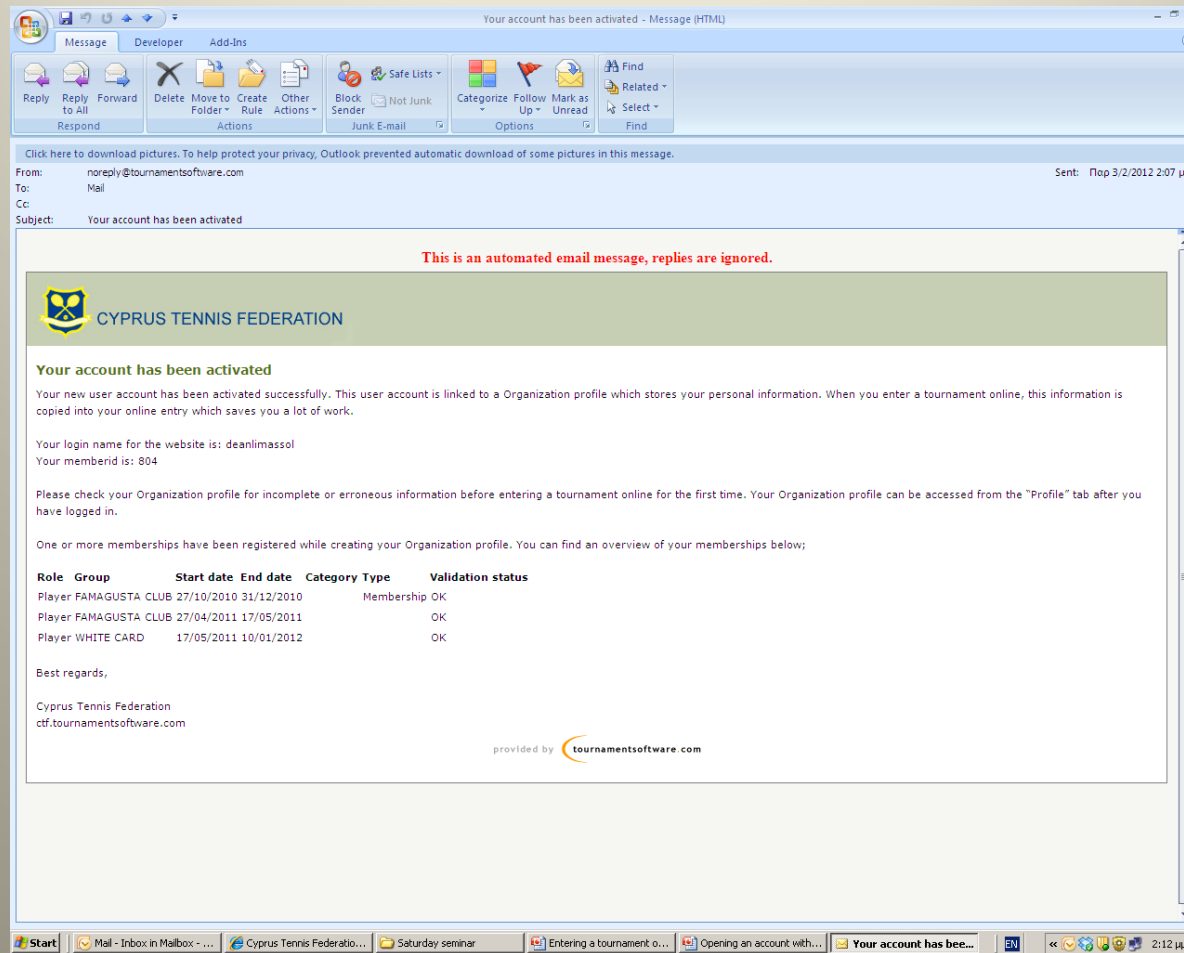

At the bottom of the page, it says 'provided by tournamentssoftware.com'.

The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the Start button, two instances of the 'Cyprus Tennis Federation' application, and the system tray with the time 1:26 PM and date 1/26/12.
